“OFF THE BEATEN PATH Just far enough off the beaten track to feel like a real find, De Loach Vineyards produces a variety of Russian River Valley sauvignon blancs, gewürztraminers, merlot and zinfandels, but is best know for chardonnay and, especially, pinot noir. Some of the pinot is made using open-top wood fermenters that are uncommon in Sonoma, but have been used in France for centuries. The tour focuses on the estate vineyards outside the tasting room door, where you'll learn about the labor-intensive biodynamic farming methods they use, such as burying cow horns filled with cow manure in the vineyards Tasting fee. ✉ 1791 Olivet Rd.
