OLD WORLD, NEW BOXES

AH, FRANCE. The bastion of all that is traditional in the world of wine. Now from its venerable vineyards comes...wine in tubes and cartons? Mind-boggling though it may be (What's next? Béarnaise sauce in squeeze bottles?), France is indeed the source of two of the most innovatively packaged wines to show up on our shores recently.

Boisset has just introduced its new line of French Rabbit wines, "bottled" in sleek "ePods"—liter-sized, faceted cartons topped with screw caps that hold Cabernet Sauvignon, Merlot, and Chardonnay from the south of France.
